ON WAY TO COURT—Reggie Barrios, right, is led to court by Russell Watts, Hancock County deputy sheriff Friday morning. Barrios was found guilty of manslaughter in the Oct. 10, 1987 death of Charles Fred Nixon of Clermont Harbor. Barrios was sentenced to 20 years in the state penitentiary. Barrios given 20 years, jury says manslaughter

BY DENA BISNETTE
Reggie Barrios has been convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to 20 years in the state penitentiary.
Barrios, a 22-year-old Lakeshore resident, was tried this week in the Oct. 10, 1987, stabbing death of Charles Fred Nixon, 51, of Clermont Harbor at a birthday party attended by more than 100 people.
The five-woman, six-man jury left the courtroom at noon Friday for lunch and deliberations, then returned with a verdict at 2:07 p.m.
Circuit Court Judge Kosta Vlahos, after receiving the verdict, asked the attorneys for comments and offered the defendant a chance to speak. Barrios declined.
Public Defenders Nicholas Haas and Steven Benvenutti represented Barrios. Haas asked the judge to consider the fact that the defendant has no criminal record and the "very unusual circumstances" involved in the case.

The judge said the unusual circumstances accounted for his inclusion of a possible manslaughter verdict in the jury instructions, although Barrios was originally charged with murder.
Vlahos said he does not feel that testimony had shown Barrios did not intend to take Nixon's life until after Nixon had already committed either aggravated assault or assault with intent to kill against Barrios.
"There is a point where one felony ends and another one begins," Vlahos said.
The testimony during the five-day trial had indicated that Barrios had been stabbed first by Nixon during an altercation at the party, where Nixon and his wife had come to pick up their two teenaged sons. All of the witnesses who talked about that part of the incident indicated that Barrios had then grabbed a steak knife off a barbecue pit and had stabbed Wayne Moore.

Lumpkin said she went to the party after dark with her boyfriend, whom she has since married, "to get some food" in spite of the fact she did not know the party host.
She knew Nixon at the time but did not know the defendant.
About 20 to 30 minutes after she got to the party, the fight began, Boudin said. The incident occurred a little more than 15 feet away from where she was standing.
She said she saw a man and a lady, whom she identified as Nixon and his wife, talking to the defendant "saying all kinds of nasty words and stuff like that" and that the lady was screaming.
Boudin said the couple was asking for their sons and "calling him white trash and s.o.b. and all kinds of nasty names."
"She had her finger up in his face and kept saying over and over again she wanted her sons."
Boudin said Barrios had asked Mrs. Nixon to stop calling him names and to take her sons and leave.
"The man came up right behind her and jumped at him, then Reggie grabbed his stomach," Boudin said. She told the court that Barrios had

NASA, Johns Hopkins use space technology to improve eye sight

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration and The Johns Hopkins Wilmer Eye Institute will use space technology to develop a device designed to improve the sight of millions of people with low vision.
Scientists at NASA's National Space Technology Laboratories in Mississippi and Wilmer scientists in Baltimore plan to adapt technology used for computer processing of images from satellites and head-mounted imaging systems originally developed for NASA Space Station projects to enhance vision.
According to officials in NASA's Technology Utilization Program, the new collaborative project is expected to run at least five years and cost a minimum of $5 million in its first phases.

The project will be carried out for NASA by NSTL's Earth Resources Laboratory, the installation's research and development organization.
The planned device, the Low Vision Enhancement System, will resemble wraparound sunglasses and will custom-tailor images of the outside world for low-vision patients. A version of the enhancement system is expected to be available to patients through clinical tests in a few years.

Approximately 11 million Americans have visual defects that cannot be corrected medically, surgically or with glasses. Severe impairment that causes disability, called low vision, affects 2.5 million Americans, according to eye institute officials.
The transfer of NASA's technology will make it possible to improve the visual capability of low-vision patients by appropriately enhancing and altering images to compensate for the individual patient's impaired eyesight.

When the device is worn, the patient will see the world on two miniature color television screens where the lenses of eyeglasses usually are located. Lenses and imaging glass fibers will be embedded on each side of the "wrap-around" section where the front and ear pieces join.
The lenses will form images of the scene in front of the patient on the surface of the fibers. The fibers, similar to those used to carry long-distance tele-

As planned, the device will be lightweight, and comfortable. The outside of the television screens will be similar to mirrored lenses in sunglasses.

The system is expected to benefit patients who have lost their peripheral or side field of vision, such as those suffering from glaucoma, an increase of fluid pressure inside the eye that damages the optic nerve, and from retinitis pigmentosa, a progressive degeneration of the retina, the delicate light sensitive nerve layer lining the eye.

opened his shirt and she had seen blood.

She said Nixon started backing away with his arms out "like he was going to fight with him."

She said Barrios then grabbed a knife from the barbecue pit and started stabbing Nixon.

She added that Nixon started backing away after being stabbed and despite the people all around them "it looked like the man was trying to get away."

She said they were still fighting as they went down to a curve in the road and out of her sight.

"Whenever somebody started saying 'He's got a gun,' everybody was saying that, that's when I left," Boudin said, adding that she heard a gunshot as she left the scene.

Under cross-examination, she told her story again, substituting the names Barrios and Nixon for he and him to make the events more clear. She said Barrios had to go no more than three to four feet to grab the knife off the table, and that Nixon started backing up "when he saw the knife on the table."

Her testimony indicated that Barrios stabbed Nixon at least twice, but "I couldn't see how many times."

"That's when I backed off. I didn't want to get right up in it."

Boudin said she never saw Nixon try to defend himself, but she did see him jump at Barrios.

"I don't know what he did, but he jumped at him," she told Parsons.

Richie Santiago, a 19-year-old student who attended the party, said he has known Barrios about 10 years and also knew the Nixons because Mrs. Nixon had been a substitute teacher at Gulfview Elementary when he attended that school.

Santiago also arrived after dark, about a half hour before the fight.

He was about 20 feet away when the Nixons came around the side of the house, and said he saw Mrs. Nixon argue with Barrios.

He said another young man who was at the party, Stevie Fricke, was trying to calm the woman and to push Barrios away from her, when another youth jumped on him.

"He could have calmed Reggie down, but he was busy to benefit patients with central vision loss, the part of vision normally used for reading. These patients may have macular degeneration associated with aging, or diabetic retinopathy, in which diabetes causes swelling and leakage of fluid in the center of the retina.

Ongoing Wilmer research supported by the National Eye Institute will provide information on how images must be altered and enhanced for the low-vision patient.

fighting," Santiago stated.

Santiago said he was also trying to calm Mrs. Nixon because he knew the woman.

"Things got out of hand and I backed off. Mrs. Nixon was yelling to her husband 'Here's the Barrios you want.'"

He saw Nixon push Barrios and then saw a knife in Nixon's hand.

He too testified that Barrios grabbed a knife from the barbecue pit.

"Mr. Nixon was just standing there like he was waiting. He still had the knife in his hand," Santiago said.

People crowding around the two men obscured his vision.

"I don't know what happened," Santiago said. "Then a little while later I heard 'he's got a gun.' I'd say it was about a minute and 45 seconds."

He said other people in the crowd began running toward an opening in the fence at the back of the yard.

"I heard one shot and that's when I went out the fence too."

Under cross examination, he demonstrated a slashing motion he said he had seen Nixon use when he stabbed Barrios. He said Barrios stabbed Nixon in the upper part of the chest, grabbing him by the left shoulder as he did so.

He said Nixon jumped back about five feet after being stabbed.

Barrios, who said he has junior college degrees qualifying him as a machinist and a diesel mechanic, said the party was an 18th birthday party for Jason Arrows. Barrios, whose birthday was the same day, had decided not to have a party of his own and instead to celebrate with Arrows. He said he was serving as the party's entertainment chaperone, which meant that he was taking care of a stereo system he had brought to the Moore residence for the party.

The defendant identified a flyer that had been circulated at Hancock North Central school advertising the party as open to friends and the general public and said Arrows had circulated it.

The flyer asked for a $3 donation for barbecued chicken and beer; Barrios said he had seen some donations being taken but had not taken any himself.

The names printed on the flyer, including two designated as bartenders, were "just a joke," Barrios said.

He described the events of the day of the party, beginning with about 1 p.m. when he went to the Moore home to set up the stereo, tables and other items for the party. After that, he and a few friends went to buy more chicken, then to play football. Among those playing ball with Barrios was Shane Nixon, then 15.

Barrios said he had had "three or four beers" before going to play football.

After returning to the Moore home, Barrios said he tore his shirt "horsing around with my friend Shannon" and went home to let his mother mend it. Barrios said he then returned to the Moore home and after about three more beers, he fell asleep in a wicker chair in the house while he was listening to tapes.

He said he was sitting in a room on the side of the house and was awakened when the Nixons came into the yard.

"It was Mrs. Nixon mainly. She was running around looking for her children and people were saying they hadn't seen them in quite a while."

He said he had thought Shane Nixon was gone, but was told later that the youth at first hid from his mother when he found out she was there to get him.

Barrios testified that he had known the Nixons three or four years and that Charles Nixon had attended meetings of his hunting club. He said he had gotten along with the man until the previous summer, when he had a disagreement with Diane Nixon.

Barrios said Shane Nixon and his 17-year-old brother had been running around the lot next to Garcia's Grocery in Olermont Harbor, where Barrios was in the habit of sitting under an oak tree on parked cars with friends his own age.

The defendant testified that Shane Nixon had knocked a mirror off his car. Barrios said he was not angry because "it was just kids playing around" but that he had told Mrs. Nixon that she should not let her children hang around where adults were drinking beer. Later in his testimony, he told Parsons under cross-examination that he felt the younger children should not be there "for the same reasons kids shouldn't be in barrooms," which he identified as being "alcohol and conversation."

Barrios said the woman then became angry at him and told him she would "clear this corner in five minutes." She summoned law enforcement officers to tell the group to move away from the store, which Barrios said they did.

When he woke up at the party, Barrios said Mrs. Nixon was arguing with Mark Necaise, who looked as if he were trying to ignore her "because she was very upset." The defendant said he heard Necaise tell her to find her children if they were there and take them and go, because no one at the party wanted trouble.

He said Mrs. Nixon then began asking where he was, calling him Barrios despite the fact she knew his name was Reggie.

He said that while she was cursing him, he was telling her "to stop cursing me by my last name and call me Reggie." He said he and Fricke tried to calm her and tell her that her children were not at the party, which he believed to be correct at the time.

He said he felt her husband might have been drinking because he knocked over a speaker as he came up to them. "I was asking them both 'what's your problem' and he said you. Then he stabbed me," Barrios said.

He described the fight, stating that Nixon pushed him with one hand and slashed at him with the other, cutting his shirt to the other side of the buttons. Barrios said he then hit Nixon a couple of times with his hands and then got the knife off the barbecue and stabbed the man several times in the chest.

The next thing he heard was Mrs. Nixon telling her husband to go to the car and get his gun, although testimony by state witnesses had indicated that the couple had left the gun at home.

He said Nixon began trying to lure him to the car, talking and cursing along the way.

"He called me a little m.f. and an s.o.b. and told me he wanted to finish what he started," Barrios said.

The defendant stated that he was certain that Nixon had a gun because he had seen firearms in the man's car before and began chasing him, planning to keep him from getting in the vehicle. At one point, Nixon tripped and fell on a water pipe. "I chased him back to the car. I said I couldn't let him get in the car," Barrios said.

"Mr. Nixon put his hand on the car to open it and we fell to the ground. Mr. Nixon hit his head on the car."

He said he could not get to Nixon sooner because Lance Necaise and another youth had been holding him, but they had let him go after Nixon reacted to being stabbed by slashing at Barrios again.

While they were at the car, Barrios said "he turned around and slashed at me one time and I stabbed him in the bottom of the stomach and again in the chest."

He described stepping on the man as two people pulled him up, being told to throw the knife away and doing so, then beating on the windows of the car because Mrs. Nixon had already started the vehicle. He said he wanted to stop her because he felt police should be able to search the car for the gun.

He also described being "taken back to the house by some of the other youths, seeing the knife on the way and putting it in his pocket because he felt it would be needed in a police investigation, then being taken to Hancock Medical Center where a policeman took the knife from him."

Before leaving for the hospital, he said he sent someone to a neighbors house to have him call authorities, but the neighbor did not know the Moore address and police and the ambulance were delayed when they responded to the neighbor's house.

With the jury out, Barrios described his disagreement with Mrs. Nixon again and two occasions where the Nixons drove by and allegedly threatened him while he was sitting under the tree next to Garcia's.

He had to repeat much of the testimony for the jury.

In one incident, Mrs. Nixon pulled up at the corner after driving across the railroad tracks and stopped her car long enough to tell him, "You little son of a bitch, your day will come."

A companion told him he had better leave in case she sent her husband back, telling Barrios the man had pulled a gun on him about 10 years before.

On the second occasion, about three weeks before the party, Nixon drove up with his wife in the car. Barrios said the woman was cursing and screaming and that Nixon threatened him.

"He told me I was white trash and didn't deserve to live," the defendant said.

Under cross-examination, he also described the fight again, stating that he did not try to run away after Nixon stabbed him because "I couldn't penetrate the crowd and not be injured again."

He continued contending that he chased Nixon to keep the man from getting to his car.

Diane Nixon, testifying a second time as a rebuttal witness, said her husband did not know Barrios. She said he knew what the young man looked like and knew the name Reggie Barrios but never connected the two.

She said she had "had words" with Barrios a few times when he and his companions blocked the road in front of Garcia's with their vehicles and had used abusive language.

"He hollered things at the children and me...I'm sure I answered it. I didn't know him as a person, but I didn't like some of the things he did and the obscenities," the witness said.

The last witness was 18-year-old Michelle Peterson, who was testifying unwillingly under subpoena. Parsons said.

She described Nixon falling at the water main as Barrios came among the yard after it and said she saw Barrios stab him. She added that the youth "feet away and did not have anything to do with it."

She also stated that she had been at the party Wednesday night and knew nothing about the matter and had not attended the party because she "didn't want to get involved in that."

The week of May 9-13 has been designated as Lightning Awareness Week by the National Weather Service and the Mississippi Emergency Management Agency.

In the year of 1987, four Mississippians were killed and ten more injured by lightning during the months of May, June, July and August.

Two of the deaths were under trees, victim of one was on a tractor and the fourth on a ballfield.

The reason for the Awareness Week is to help Mississippians become aware of the dangers of lightning and learn some of the safety rules.

Some of the basic safety rules for lightning are:

—When a thunderstorm is near, get inside a building or a vehicle.

Get away from water.

—Inside a building do not use a telephone except for emergencies.

—Do not stand under tall isolated trees.

—If caught outside, do not let your body be taller than the surrounding landscape.

—Stay off metal objects such as motorcycles, golf carts and bicycles.

—In a forest, seek shelter in a low area under a thick growth of small trees.

During the summer months our area usually has thunderstorms, so we hope everyone will use caution during these storms.

We really appreciate the cooperation everyone in Hancock County is extending towards the Coast-wide 'Stash Your Trash' beach cleanup set for Saturday, May 14.

The event is being sponsored by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with the Hancock County board of supervisors and Hancock County Extension Service and other groups and organizations.

The committee is now in the process of working on the final details for the cleanup in Hancock County and should have all the information together by Thursday.

The cleanup time will be from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. followed by refreshments.

It is realized many things will be happening next Saturday, yet, it is hoped the cleanup will have a lot of participants.

In Congress

JACKSON—Senator Thad Cochran (R-Miss.) says he hopes the Senate and White House can work together in reaching an understanding on the historic INF treaty scheduled for debate next month.

Outlining the ratification process, Senator Cochran said the treaty is very important to the future national security interests of the United States, and commented:

"It is as difficult for the administration to negotiate with some members of Congress as it is to reach an understanding with the Soviet Union."

"I urge the Senate and the administration to work out agreements as to the meaning of the provisions of this treaty."

Cochran told a statewide organization of National Guard members the INF treaty is 'historic' because for the first time such an agreement with the Soviet Union 'provides for the actual elimination of deployed weapons systems' on both sides.

Cochran noted that three Senate committees have been examining the treaty and conducting hearings on it since the President and Secretary Gorbachev signed it last December and suggested that all Senators closely review the treaty and the hearing records before the Senate debate begins on May 9.

Also, the senator cited the importance of the National Guard and Reserves to the nation's defense system, and that defense and related spending totals over 3.3 billion a year in Mississippi.

Speaking to the 50th annual convention of the National Guard Association of Mississippi, he pointed out there are over 73,000 Mississippians involved in defense. This includes nearly 16,000 Guard personnel, over 9,300 Reservists, and nearly 18,000 active duty military personnel at state bases.

He concluded by noting that the Guard and Reserves now perform 50 percent of the nation's national security mission with only 13 percent of the defense funding. "Our nation should be grateful for the dedicated service and sacrifice you are making on our behalf" he said.

Happy Mother's Day

I Love You, Mommy

Here I am forty, and trying to be the same kind of mommy that you were to me.

I'm mending the knees and sewing the rips, and taking the class on field trips.

With tin foil crowns and bedsheet attire, setting imagination on fire,

Feeding the frogs, snakes, toads and moles, hoping by this to nourish his soul.

Kisses and hugs by the gallon each day, a pinch of correction somewhere on the way,

Baking the cakes, throwing the ball, respecting God's creatures, the big and the small.

The lessons I give with my son on my knee are the very same ones that you gave to me.

Caring and sharing and all of the rest taught by my Mommy, the world's very best.

Eyes on Mississippi

By Bill Minor

BY BILL MINOR
JACKSON—While Gov. Ray Mabus didn't quite fulfill his hopes of raising teachers' salaries to the Southeastern average in his first legislative session, he has won from the Legislature a far better teacher pay package than many, this writer included, expected.

Certainly the $183 million in pay raises over the next two school years that state lawmakers handed Mabus last week will make teacher salaries in Mississippi competitive with practically every Southern state.

That is no mean accomplishment for a state with Mississippi's lean resources. Mabus justifiably should be proud to have been the catalyst in bringing it off.

In particular, there will be no reason now for Mississippi teachers to look toward Louisiana or Alabama for greener pastures as they have for a number of years.

Mabus had started out asking the Legislature for a $3700 teacher raise (which was still some $1600 below the projected Southeast average in 1988-89) in the school year starting in July. The Legislature gave him $2110, starting Dec. 15.

Then lawmakers applied their own bit of one-upmanship by committing the state to bring the raises up to $3,800 raise for teachers the following school year. That will put the state just below the regional average.

To institute the 1989-90 raise will cost an estimated $117.5 million.

Actually, the crafting of the pay raise by lawmakers was very clever. The key was to get by the first year without a tax increase, something Mabus adamantly opposed and legislative fiscal leaders didn't want to risk an override fight.

But to stitch together the necessary funding for the first year teacher raise, lawmakers had to go along with a Mabus scheme to in effect raid every piggy bank in state government to scratch up some $57.7 million in what is called "one-time" money.

The two-year plan obviously postpones the heaviest funding lead to the 1989 session of the Legislature. With apologies to William Shakespeare, there's the rub.

Few lawmakers, especially fiscal leaders, really believe they are going to be able to come up with the $117.5 million ante for the second year teacher raises, and meet other budget pressures, without having to raise taxes at the 1989 session.

However, at the moment the best face is being put on what lies down the road as both the Mabus Administration and the legislature bask in their accomplishment.

At least one saving grace has been woven into the new teacher pay package: An educational reserve fund, into which will go any money up to $50 million in the general fund after all obligations are met in the 1988-89 fiscal year.

Still, it is intriguing to dissect some of the reasons why legislators, knowing that it would push the state's fiscal ability to the limits, would go along with Mabus on the massive increases in teachers' salaries.

Many lawmakers say they also had been elected on platforms of improving education, and therefore, the momentum for a teacher pay raise was already generated in the Legislature before Mabus came forth with his plan.

Some teacher pay increase was going to pay anyway, most agree, but the amount would have probably been less if Mabus had not set $3,700 as the goal.

Yet, beneath the surface of the seeming cooperation of the Legislature in giving Mabus practically everything he asked for seems to lie a secret agenda: That when the full amount of the pay raise is implemented next year and taxes will have to be raised, lawmakers will hang it around Mabus' neck.

While much is being said that Mabus is "re-inventing education," insufficient credit is being given to the fact that a lot has been done in behalf of teachers and improving public education since 1982.

Forgotten by some is the fact that in 1985, when some 9000 teachers went on strike, the Legislature voted a three-year $4,400 pay increase package.

Add to that the $3800 raise which goes on line next school year and you will have a total increase of $8,200. That comes to more than a 55 percent raise in five years time.

Inevitably, the public is going to expect better teachers for such an investment of tax dollars.

Why I am so wonderful

I am wonderful,
Yes, indeed!
Not the slightest hint of conceit.

I'm nice and pretty,

She made me what I've become.

Report from the Senate

The Legislature is in its last phase of the legislative process. During the remaining two weeks of the 1988 Session, the bills which remain alive in the system are in the hands of conference committees—each composed of three Senators and three Representatives—who are attempting to work out compromises on the differences between the Senate and the House. Once an agreement is reached by the conference committee, the Senate and House must both give its approval to the bill before it goes to the Governor for his consideration.

Some of the bills which are now in conference include:

—Teacher Pay Raise—The Governor, the Senate and the House all favor raising teacher salaries to the Southeastern average which would mean an average of $3,700 raise. The difference lies in when the full amount of the raise would be implemented. The Governor wants the raise effective with the coming school year. The House wants to grant seven-ninths of the raise the coming year and give the full raise the following year. The Senate wants to grant the full raise effective Jan. 1, 1989. The Senate and House have based their positions on fears a tax increase would be required in the near future to maintain the raise.

—State Employee Pay Raise—The majority of the appropriations bill funding state agencies and programs are in conference because of differences in the proposed pay increases for state employees. The Senate has voted to fund the state's Variable Compensation Pay Plan which is designed to assure state employees are paid on a comparable basis to those in the private sector and similar government jobs in other states. The House wants to add an additional across-the-board three percent or $75 per month raise.

At the conclusion of the passage of all the appropriations bills, the Senate had held the line and funded the state budget at $6.5 million under the expected revenue for the coming year.

However, the House version of the budget was in the red with some $72 million in proposed expenditures over the revenue estimate. The end result of the conference committee

It Shouldn't Happen To A Dog!

DON'T let your dog travel unsecured in an open pickup truck bed. Dogs can't "hold on" the way humans can, and any sudden start, stop, or turn can toss your pet onto the highway. If the impact of hitting the road at a high speed doesn't kill it, oncoming traffic probably will.

There are other hazards to consider. Most dogs love the feeling of wind blowing past their ears at 60 mph, but that wind can seriously irritate mucous membranes and blow pieces of grit into the animal's eye, which could cause permanent damage to the eye. Insects or flying debris can also lodge in the nasal passages or get sucked up into the windpipe.

It is safest to allow your dog to ride inside the truck cab, or leave it at home. If it must ride in the back of the truck, put the pet inside a crate that will give it some protection from the wind and weather, and tie the crate securely to the walls of the truck bed so it cannot slide about or be tossed out of the truck.

tees on the budget items will have to be closer to the Senate figures because of the apparent little support for a tax increase.

—Constitutional Convention Referendum—This bill would allow you, the voters, to vote in November whether or not you want to have a convention to rewrite our state's constitution. The house wants the question on the ballot to simply ask if you favor a convention or not, whereas the Senate version would give you the choice of voting for reform by convention or by the amendment process. Also at issue is whether or not the convention, if one is chosen, can be required to include certain sections of the present document. Many legal minds believe this would only bring about a court challenge.

—Abolishment of the Board of Corrections—This bill would abolish the Board of Corrections and put control of the Department directly under the Governor. At issue is whether or not certain employees should be required to have the Parchman facility as their base of operations.

—Economic Development Reorganization—This bill combines the Department of Economic Development and the Research and Development Center. It abolishes the Board of Economic Development and places it under the Governor's control. The service functions of the R & D would go to the Department of Economic Development and the research functions would be placed with the Institutions of Higher Learning.

—County Unit System—This bill gives guidelines for counties to operate on a unit system of government for purchasing of equipment and supplies and construction and maintenance of roads. One of the main differences between the two houses is that the House wants to allow each county to vote on adopting the unit system whereas the Senate bill mandates it.

A number of bills have been passed by both houses and have been signed into law by the Governor. Some of these include:

- authorize sheriffs to use inmates to pickup trash.
- increase penalties for boating violations.
- require satellite voter registration. This bill would require the registrar to spend one full day at the regular polling place in no less than three voting precincts in each supervisor district in the county to register voters during the 12 months prior to the election of statewide officials.

- Set up a committee to study the reorganization of state agencies to reduce the number to around 15.
- increase the amount which may be spent on the Medicaid Program to $400 million.

Several bills also either failed to pass either in committee or by the full Senate or House. Some of these include:

- A bill to require compulsory auto liability insurance died on the House calendar.

—The bill which the Senate passed dealing with liability from public roads died in a House committee.

- A bill to authorize counties to open and close graves failed to pass the House.
- A bill to require the Parole Board to hold open meetings failed to pass the House.
- A bill to value year ornaments and would be glad to hear from you at any time. You may write to me at the Mississippi State Senate, P.O. Box 1018, Jackson, Mississippi 39205 or call me at 359-3770.

Cooking up a Storm

By Katy McGuire Caire

As Spring days grow longer and warmer and the garden beckons, many of us find it difficult at times to work up much enthusiasm for the skillet or the oven.

When I start to reach that stage, I usually get busy and cook up a chicken or so, several kinds of fresh vegetables, and so on. Then I boil up some potatoes and make sure that there's pasta and rice and onions on hand—and lots of fresh tomatoes and peppers and onions and fruit.

So for the next several days or so, I'm more or less free to enjoy Spring fever or work in the garden or whatever I feel like doing, secure in the knowledge that there's food aplenty on hand, even for expected or unexpected guests.

After a dinner of baked or sauteed chicken, for instance, there's plenty of leftover chicken to star again as sweet and sour chicken chunks or chicken and spaghetti or salad or sandwiches, and so forth. With cold boiled potatoes on hand in the refrigerator, you have the basis for hash browns or scalloped potatoes or chicken hash or soup. And, with a varied assortment of barely steamed fresh vegetables on hand, you can quickly make a marinated vegetable platter or cheese-sauced vegetable or whatever—just use your imagination and whatever bits and pieces are on the refrigerator shelves.

A few days ago, I had reason to be thankful for that early morning cooking spree. I was up to my elbows in potting soil, just about, grimy and busy transplanting marigolds from their containers into the vegetable patch, in an effort to divert Peanut-the-Cat and the rabbits away from my plot of just-growing parsley and green onions and dill and such, when a few friends stopped by on their way home from a stay in Destin, Fla.

I handed the trowel to one, the seedlings to another, and headed for the kitchen. The potato soup chilling in the fridge became vichyssoise. I started a pot of water for cooking up a batch of pasta twists, quickly chopped a few tomatoes and green peppers and onions together, sauteed it all with chicken chunks, just a bit, to make a sauce for the pasta.

Salad? Marinated vegetables, of course. And, for dessert, what else but strawberries, heaped over vanilla ice cream. And, plenty of time to enjoy the visitors!

The classic cold soup, vichyssoise, was added to our culinary repertoire when a long-ago chef had made potato soup out of leftover mashed potatoes and had let the soup get cold. So—he brought forth a new dish! Here's the classic:

VICHYSOISE

(Vee-chee-swah)
2 cups leftover mashed potatoes

1 small onion, chopped
3 green onions, sliced thin
3 Tbsp. butter or margarine
1 chicken bouillon cube

Milk
Pepper, salt to taste
Minced parsley, dash paprika

Saute the onions in butter until tender, but not brown, for several minutes. Add the bouillon and cook, till dissolved. Blend in the potatoes, then add the milk (1 to 1½ cups milk per cup of potatoes, or till the consistency you prefer—I like it on the thick side. Heat a bit, and season, then chill.

Serve in cups, with parsley and paprika sprinkled atop. (The original version calls for leeks, but I substitute green onions.)

P.S. I usually have chicken or beef or beef stock on hand, so I use that instead of a bouillon cube.)

Reflections

By Reverend Jerome LeDoux, SVD
St. Augustine Seminary

APPRECIATE YOUR MOTHER

It had to happen sooner or later, but it was a shock nonetheless. Despite the fact that my mother suffers from Alzheimer's disease, or something with equivalent symptoms, she had always managed to recognize me without any difficulty.

This time was different. Returning from the episcopal ordination of Bishop Curtis Guillory in Houston on Feb. 19, I hopped off in Lake Charles the next morning to visit my mother in the rest home where she is being cared for.

Perhaps it was overmedication. Maybe it was partially the distraction of eating. Whatever, upon seeing me she said nothing which indicated that she knew who I was, nor was there any visible sign of recognition in her face.

Some of the edge was taken off this trauma when she called me by my nickname about 5 minutes before I left her. However, the essential damage had been done. I was shaken.

Although a subsequent popcorn visit found her to be her old smiling self once more, it would never be quite the same again. Someone most precious was beginning to fade in earthly terms.

Mother's stock with me, which has always been sky high, somehow rose again dramatically. My appreciation of her, which has always been considerable, took a quantum leap.

"You say she will be 87 years old in July? What a blessing!" a dear friend told me when I recounted the incident of my not being recognized by mother. "Though she is weakening now, she has been blessed and you have been blessed all these years."

"Yes, you're right," I conceded. "The whole family has been richly blessed by the gift of such a mother for such a long time. Daddy was here for 80 years, until 1980, and now mother has survived in reasonable health until the last few years."

It is a singular blessing to have one's mother for any length of time, however brief. That blessing simply multiplies with each passing year, until the point comes where each visit with her becomes an unworded prayer of thanksgiving to God for such a privilege.

Once in a while, that privilege has the distinct stamp of years, such as the case of a treasured friend, Victoria Lewis. More full of goodness and life than of years, Victoria was crowding 91 when Jesus called her to himself on Jan. 15.

At times, the fullness of years is lacking, but the supreme quality of life more than compensates for the missing quantity. All too many mothers do not reach a ripe old age, some not even late middle age, before they go to that wonderful place which God has prepared for loving mother.

Every single time, it is a moving, poignant experience to hear friends speak meditatively, lovingly, powerfully about their mothers who have gone on to a fuller life in God. Invariably, their reflections strike a chord of urgency deep within.

There is not time to be unthinking, forgetful, mindless of the treasure which we have for whatever brief time we have. That time is all the more crucial if the years are short, because even the longest span of time seems painfully brief.

It makes us feel good all over to ponder the wonder which is our mother-child relationship, and to realize that we are so privileged to have been born and to share the marvels of life.

In heaven's eternal day we shall never be separated from mother, but it makes earth much better to appreciate her now.

ETV Briefs

VIGILANTE?

From the front page headlines to ETV, the compelling drama of "subway vigilante" Bernhard Goetz comes to "American Playhouse."

"The Trial of Bernhard Goetz," based upon official court transcripts, comes in the wake of one of the most publicized and highly charged criminal trials in recent history. It will air at 9 p.m., Wednesday, May 11, on Mississippi ETV.

Peter Crombie stars as the white electrical engineer who shot four black youths on a New York subway after they allegedly accosted him, demanding money.

Power company lowers rates

Mississippi Power customers will see a slight drop in the cost of electricity beginning in July when a $3.5 million rate decrease goes into effect.

The decrease in rates is the result of a Performance Evaluation Plan review of the company for the first quarter of 1988. Under the plan, instituted in 1986 by the state Public Service Commission, the company's financial condition and performance is audited once a quarter. Depending on the review, rates can go up or down a maximum of two percent or remain the same.

"The cost for $1,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity will drop from $60.87 to $60.15," Ed Blakeslee, vice president of Marketing said. "This is certainly not a big drop in rates, but the Performance Evaluation Plan is not designed for wide changes in rates. I think this shows that the plan is operating as designed with small, incremental changes rather than larger changes all at once that can cause difficulties for the customer or the company."

Blakeslee said this decrease was in keeping with a company trend over the past five years that shows MPC's customer charges have dropped about 8 percent overall.

"If you look just at this small decrease it doesn't seem like much," Blakeslee said. "But if you look at the overall picture, you can see that this is the eighth decrease we have had in the past five years. The customer's cost for $1,000 kilowatt-hours has decreased from $65.25 to $60.15. We think that's a pretty good record considering inflation, interest rates and other economic factors that affect our cost of doing business. Our rates will continue to be some of the lowest in the nation."

The evaluation of MPC for the first three months of 1988 showed the company's return on equity, or what stockholders could expect to earn on their investment, was 14.307 percent. The decrease in rates occurred because this was just above the allowable range of 14.301 and 12.301. The range is established each quarter by how well the company serves customers. The decrease will lower MPC's return to 13.301 percent.

In the performance category, the PEP report showed MPC scored a 7.26 on a scale of 1 to 10 when 5 is considered average. This indicator rates the company on how well generating plants are maintained, the frequency and duration of power outages, safety, rate comparisons with other utilities and customer opinion surveys.

The next PEP report will be for the second quarter of 1988 will be filed in early August.

Sesame pair to wed

A child's-eye view of life's ongoing drama is a part of every Sesame Street. This year the series has been dealing with the happy topic of romance.

Young viewers across the country watched as Maria and Luis, longtime friends and partners in the Fix-It Shop, found their feelings for each other growing. Maria and Luis demonstrated that love is a special feeling between two people and explained how marriage is a promise between a grown-up man and woman to live together and share their lives.

Their wedding, at 3 p.m., Friday, May 13, on Mississippi ETV, includes familiar traditions, from the wedding cake to the wearing of "something old, something new, something borrowed and something blue."

Puerto Rican customs from Maria's family will also be an important part of the ceremony. Pint-sized viewers will see the long white dress, the two rings, the promise to love and...the all-important kiss.

The wedding ceremony will be rebroadcast at 7 a.m., Monday, May 16, on Mississippi ETV.

HISTORY OF WAVELAND—In preparation for entering the Waveland Centennial Essay Contest, Mrs. Cathy Edwards' English class at Bay Junior high heard a report on the history of Waveland by Dr. Larry Heller of Bay St. Louis, publicity chairman of the Hancock County Historical Society and a semi-retired psychologist who headed the Psychiatric Department at Baptist Hospital in New Orleans. Heller, owns the Halcyon House antique shop on Main Street in Bay St. Louis and lives in one of Bay St. Louis' oldest homes on Main Street. He discussed the growth and development of Waveland, shared old pictures, and told about the ghosts and hidden treasure in that 100-year-old city.

Cooking up a Storm

By Katy McGuire Caire

Spring and tender spring chickens go together, especially these days, when modern methods assure the tenderness of the bird.

You may think that the political slogan, "A chicken in every pot" is a pronouncement of recent times, but far back in 1500's, France's King Henry IV gave voice to this thought—"I want there to be no peasant in my kingdom so poor that he is unable to have a chicken in his pot every Sunday."

Whether Henry's countrymen reached that ideal is open to doubt, I'm sure, but through the ensuing years, other statesmen and politicians picked up the slogan, "A chicken in every pot" as a promise of better times in store.

Chicken is often in my cooking pots, for it's a favorite of mine and my family, and there are so many ways to cook and serve it that it's a standby for many cooks. And, kind to the household budget as well!

Chicken Marengo, one of my favorites, is a festive garlicky-tomato-wine treat, as delicious today as it must have been to Emperor Napoleon on that long-ago day on the battlefield at Marengo, the swiftly improvised conception of a harried cook!

History tells us that on that historic day the Austrians had finally retreated, and Napoleon, who had eaten nothing before the battle, was suddenly ravenous, and requested that his chef, Dunand, cook up a victory feast.

With food in short supply over the ravaged Italian countryside, the chef was hard up to come up with a festive meal; but he managed to gather together a chicken, some tomatoes and garlic spices—and a dish was born!

You don't have to be embattled to enjoy Chicken Marengo, a tasty dish which needs only French bread and a green salad to round out the meal, followed by a sharp cheese and fresh fruit in the French manner. (Some versions of this dish add crawfish). Here's:

CHICKEN MARENGO
(My Version)
1 (2½ to 3 lb.) broiler-fryer chicken, cut into serving pieces or quartered
2 Tbsp. oil
2 medium onions, chopped
2 Tbsp. chopped green onions
1 clove garlic, chopped
1 bay leaf

¼ lb. mushrooms, sliced
1 Tbsp. flour for sprinkling
¼ cup dry white wine, more if needed
3 tomatoes, chopped fine (or 2 Tbsp. tomato paste)

In large, heavy skillet, brown the chicken on both sides in the heated oil. Add the onions, green onions and garlic and cook just until the onions are transparent. Sprinkle the flour over and cook for a minute or so, then add bay leaf, wine, tomatoes, pepper and salt—cover and simmer gently for 30 minutes, or until the chicken is tender.

Add the mushrooms at this point, correct seasoning, and if needed, add a bit more wine or a little more broth. Cover skillet again and cook until the mushrooms turn very light golden in color.

I like to sprinkle chopped parsley over this dish when serving. (Four servings)
